Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Speech of Richard Busteed, Delivered at Faneuil Hall, Boston, October 31st, 1862 Mr. President and Gentlemen: I meet and greet you to-day as a law-abiding, government sustaining, liberty-loving, and treason-hating man, I do not appear among you as a politician of any of the schools; I am not either a pervert or convert. The mere political opinions of any man are now of very little consequence. The nation is in the midst of a terrible struggle for its life, and how best and quickliest to save it, are the great questions of the hour. Everything else must be subordinated to this, because everything else is less than this. War - relentless, bloody, and unprovoked - has been made, and is being made, upon a people, loving peace and wishing to pursue it, A war which, originating in fraud, speculation, and treason, must be allowed no other end than the absolute unqualified subjugation of the traitors who commenced and are carrying it on. Twenty millions of freemen are audaciously challenged by an insolent foe to yield...
